450 HIGHWAY MEN GO WITHOUT PAY

Entire Force Of Gettysburg Office To Be Without Checks.

ENGINEER IS SILENT

Secretary Wright Severely Criticizes State Treasurer Snyder For Ruling He Admits May Work Hardships.

Approximately 450 employes of the local district office of the State Highway Department, from Samuel Hart, district engineer, down to the laborers on the road, it is said by employes here, are doing without their salary checks, which were due July 15. Approximately 10,000 employes of the Highway Department throughout the State are similarly affected.

The pay checks are held up by State Treasurer Charles A. Snyder's refusal to pay lump sum advances to the State Highway Department and by his order requiring motor fund receipts to be deposited in the treasury.

Secretary of Highways Wright was the first to register a kick about the forced observance of Governor Pinchot's reorganization code.

Two letters from the State Treasurer to Mr. Wright have been made public.

In one Snyder announced no advance would be made and informed the highway department head that he may certify requisitions covering the details of payments requested and the fund from which payable, and after audit by the auditor general and approval by the treasury department the treasurer's office will issue its checks "as soon as we can possibly do so within the limits of our capacity under the appropriation as cut by the governor." This cut, which the governor made in the general appropriation bill, was $128,800 largely in the item for clerk hire.

In the other letter Snyder directed Wright, beginning July 16, to forward to the treasury daily all checks and money received from motor vehicle licenses. He declared "all other moneys received by you, payable to the commonwealth of Pennsylvania and credited to your account anywhere, must be transmitted to this department for deposit."

Secretary Wright declared the first letter means "that over 10,000 laborers must wait for their pay, and maintenance work on the roads will be interfered with."

"The present method of operation is simple and expedient," he added. "In the same breath the state treasurer caicels it, thereby assuming for his department a vast amount of detail work, and then implies his inability to

MAN IS CAUGHT BETWEEN 2 CARS

Arthur Cunningham Becomes Human Buffer In Accident And Is Injured.

Arthur Cunningham, North Stratton street, an employe of the Gettysburg Electric Company, was severely injured this morning about 8 o'clock when he was caught between an automobile driven by J. J. Redding, Baltimore street, and a truck of the Electric Company which he was in the act of cranking. The accident happened on York street in front of the Electric Company office.

The injured man was taken to the Warner Hospital in the automobile of William Codori, York street, where his injuries are said to consist of a contusion on the abdomen and possible internal injuries, the extent of which is not yet determined. His condition is reported as not being serious.

According to an eye witness of the accident, Redding was backing his automobile in an effort to get the machine out of a slight traffic jam, when it ran into Cunningham whose back was turned to the oncoming machine as he stooped to crank the light truck of the Electric Company.

The impact shoved the light truck a distance of ten feet, with Cunningham's body acting as a buffer. The injured man was thrown onto the pavement in an unconscious condition. He did not regain consciousness until after his admission to the hospital.

BIGLER SCOUTS READY FOR CAMP

Will Spend Ten Days at Natural Dam And Along Marsh Creek.

Biglerville Boy Scouts, members of Troop 1, will go into their summer camp on Friday, July 20, according to present plans for the annual outing. They will pitch their tents this year on the banks of Marsh Creek, not far from Natural Dam, where the troop will remain for ten days.

Natural Dam is a spot unexcelled for natural beauty by any in this county, and is located about seven miles south of Gettysburg, about three-quarters of a mile east of the highway leading to Emmitsburg. The locality is wild and rugged,—Nature unspoiled,—and will afford the scouts ample opportunity for the study of natural history, in the opinion of Scoutmaster Rev. S. F. Tholan. Swimming and fishing are also features of the place and will be a part of the scouts' daily program.

The encampment will be in charge of the Scoutmaster, Rev. Tholan, pastor of the Biglerville Lutheran Church, and assistant scoutmaster Martin Hoffman. They will be aided in the control of the camp by two patrol leaders, Claud Miller and Ray Oyler, both of Biglerville.

LEGION PLANS DANCE

Hopes to Have Next Block Dance In Center Square Soon.

Discussion of plans for another block dance, to be staged preferably in Center Square, and appointment of committees to arrange for the affair were the main items of business transacted at a regular meeting of the Albert J. Lentz American Legion post on Monday evening. William G. Weaver, commander, presided.

A date for the block dance was not fixed but was left in the hands of a committee composed of James Howe, M. V. Fugitt and William Timmins. Another committee whose members are Radford Lippy, Ralph Becker and Dorsey Rebert was appointed to handle the refreshment end of the dance.

William Timmins, a member of the committee which staged the recent block dance for the Legion, reported clearing $25.53 from the affair.

A special meeting of the house committee was held immediately after the close of the regular session.

DOLLINGS FIRM DELAYS CHECKS

Pennsylvania Customers Are Notified Business Has Ceased Until After Friday.

OPTIMISM IS FELT HERE

Local Investors Express Opinion That Conditions Are Not Half as Bad as at First Painted by Fright.

Several hundred shareholders and customers, in Gettysburg and this vicinity, of the R. L. Dollings Company of Pennsylvania were included in the 20,000 of this State who were notified in a circular letter sent out Monday saying that the company will not transact further business until after the hearing on the receivership petition next Friday and that their dividend checks, which were due on the 15th of this month, will not be forthcoming for the present.

At to where the checks will come from to gladden the hearts of the investors, the letter gives no guarantee. Numerous clients of the company in Gettysburg and vicinity, however, are confident in their expressions of the opinion that the companies are not in as bad shape as was first intimated.

The letter, which was mailed from the Philadelphia office of the Pennsylvania Dollings Company, at 1421 Walnut street, says the concern will not attempt any argument on the questions involved, but is ceasing operations until after Friday's court hearing.

"The common pleas court of Franklin county, O., did not grant the petition to appoint a receiver," reads the letter, "but set a date on July 20 to hear the case. The court also denied the request to restrain the R. L. Dollings companies from operating their business. Pending the hearing by the court on the matter we will not attempt any argument on the questions involved, but it is our aim merely to advise you of this action."

The request was made to the Ohio court by thirteen dissatisfied stockholders of the R. L. Dollings Company of Ohio and its affiliated cor-

MAY OPEN HARRISBURG ROAD ON THURSDAY

Indications Are That York 'Pike Will Soon Be Finished.

Indications were today that the stretch of Federal roadway under construction north of Gettysburg on the Harrisburg road would be opened on Thursday morning. With the opening of this road, the dusty detour on the Hunterstown road made necessary by the repair job will be done away with. The Federal road, more than a mile in length, is being rebuilt with an unbound macadam and oil process.

It was also authoritatively stated today that work of rebuilding the stretch of the Lincoln Highway east of Gettysburg would be completed during the first week in August and that road thrown open.

With the opening of the Federal road which has been under construction of the M. and T. E. Farrell Company, traffic east of Gettysburg on the Lincoln Highway will be directed out the Harrisburg road to the Hunterstown State road and thence to the Lincoln Highway, emerging at Gulden's station. This traffic is now being directed over the back road to Hunterstown.

SOLDIER PAYS FOR THEFT

Sends Check for Fruit Stolen From N. L. Minter's Store.

N. L. Minter, proprietor of the green grocery store on Baltimore street, this morning received a check for $12.50 in payment for goods which were said to have been taken from his fruit stand outside the store by members of the company of Field Artillery stationed here for twelve days during the first part of this month. The men came here in connection with the celebration of the 60th anniversary of the Battle of Gettysburg.

Members of the State Police stationed here were notified of the theft, and were sent after the soldiers, who left town the morning the discovery was made.

Mr. Minter said at the time that he would not prosecute the men, asking only that restitution be made for the fruit taken. The check he has just received bore the name of Leonard Kitts, and was accompanied by a letter from the Captain of the company, J. M. Sanderson.

FIREMEN PLAN FOR LABOR DAY

Second Annual Convention of County Association at Little Round Top.

The second annual picnic of the Adams County Firemen's Association will be held at Little Round Top on Labor Day, according to present plans, permission having been secured to obtain the use of sufficient ground to care for the large delegations of firemen and visitors who are expected to be present.

With an attendance of over 3,000 persons at the first affair of this kind held last year in McSherrystown, it is anticipated that an even greater gathering may be found here for the affair.

The picnic and festival will be held in the vicinity of Rosensteel's pavilion, and sufficient ground is available to furnish parking space for the thousand or more cars which will grace the "party."

The order of events will be somewhat as follows:

Firemen delegates from each of the nine companies in the county, and numbering between four and five hundred men, will reach Gettysburg in the morning, and business sessions of the convention will be held.

The entire personnel present will form a parade in Gettysburg early in the afternoon, with the main festivities of the day staring soon afterward at Little Round Top.

Dancing in the pavilion will be considered "good form" throughout the afternoon and evening, while a varied assortment of refreshments, games and amusements will make short the hours.

'VOTE BY MAIL' NOW ALLOWED

Approximately 1,000 Forms Will Be Prepared By County Commissioners.

Acting in accord with the provisions of a recent law enacted by the Legislature and approved by Governor Pinchot, approximately 1,000 forms for use of absentee electors to vote at the primaries in September and a similar number for the municipal election in November will be prepared by the Adams county commissioners shortly.

There were 20,000 voters registered in Adams county last year and the new law provides that papers to the extent of five per cent of the registration must be printed for use if needed. It is believed in the office of the commissioners here that a large number of these ballots will be used.

During the war Adams county soldiers in camps at home and abroad were allowed to vote by mail, but before and since the World War absentee voting was unknown. August 18 is the first day on which absentee voting applications may be taken out at the office of the county commissioners. September 15 is the last day to procure the applications.

C. E. Tawney, clerk to the county commissioners, today said that office would begin shortly to prepare the machinery necessary to comply with the measure, which permits residents of Gettysburg and Adams county to vote at the primary and municipal elections, regardless of where they may be, by certain qualifications.

The only requirement of the law which is subject to doubt is that ballots must be mailed in time to reach the judge of the voting district of the resident on or before election day.

The "vote by mail" has been in effect successfully in more than a score of states and was urged particularly by traveling men and others

FUMIGATE WHEAT IN MOTH CONTROL

County Agent R. E. Underwood Urges Prompt Treatment, and Tells Methods.

LONG ARTICLE IS QUOTED

Treatment of Wheat Necessary to Prevent Damage, and Directions For Use of Carbon Bisulphide are Given.

While a great deal of information has been published lately for the information of farmers in handling their wheat to avert destruction of the grain by the angoumois moth, the present time is one during which the question is daily becoming of more importance, according to Adams county Farm Agent R. E. Underwood.

In spite of detailed instructions in the matter of treating grain with carbon bisulphide, says Mr. Underwood, one drug store in this vicinity which handles the liquid is selling one pound to treat one hundred bushels of wheat. The proper quantity to use is three pounds to every hundred bushels of wheat, he declares.

"There has been much publicity given to the dangers of partial and total loss of grain from the ravages of the moth, but the entire situation has never been as completely stated and recapitulated, and detailed instructions for treatment given heretofor as appear in the Garden Spot News of recent issue. An article in that paper, written by A. L. Strand, is so plain and so complete, that I quote the article here," said Mr. Underwood today. It is as follows:

Although early threshing does perhaps the most good in cutting down damage by the Angoumois grain-moth, in the heavily infested districts such as southeastern Pennsylvania, there must be something further done to kill the insects which remain in some of the kernels after the grain is put in the bin no matter how early it has been threshed. Fumigating with carbon bisulphide fills this need. A discussion of the properties and use of this material may be of interest at this time.

The use of carbon bisulphide for fumigating purposes is nothing new. Large quantities of it have been consumed for years to kill weevils and other insects which injure stored grains, beans, peas, etc. It is one of the two best fumigants for destroying destructive insects known and for con-

HOW HE GOT HIS NAME

M. A. L. Trostle Was Born Same Night Lincoln Was Shot.

M. A. L. Trostle, of Mt. Pleasant township, a candidate for the Republican nomination as a member of the Adams county commissioners, was a visitor at the court house here on Monday afternoon when a curious fact was learned about his life. He was born the night of April 14, 1864, the same in which President Lincoln was fatally shot in a theatre in Washington. Because of that coincidence his parents called him Abraham Lincoln. His first name is Moses.

Enthusiasm has been aroused throughout Adams county toward the "glad-hand", get-together meeting being arranged by the Gettysburg Chamber of Commerce for the farmers of the county on the farm of M. All members of the Gettysburg Chamber of Commerce are expected to participate in the meeting, including merchants, bankers and all others who are anxious to see a closer coordination between the town of Gettysburg and the rural population of Adams county. Committees to complete detailed arrangements for the affair will be appointed at a full membership meeting of the Chamber of Commerce to be held at the Court House on Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock.

FARMER-LABOR WINS SENATOR

Magnus Johnson, Dirt-Farmer, Succeeds Late Senator Knute Nelson.

REPRESENTS MINNESOTA

Now That Johnson Has Won Election, "He Can Go Home To Help Finish With The Haying."

(By Associated Press)

St. Paul, July 17.—Minnesota's representation in the United States Senate has been turned over to the Farmer-Labor party as the result of another political transition the state went through in the special senatorial election yesterday.

Magnus Johnson, a real dirt farmer, gained the post vacated by the death of Senator Knute Nelson.

Although jubilant over his victory the farmer Senator was more concerned today about "getting his haying done" than things political and he thought to postpone statements incident to his election, but did drop a few remarks.

"Well boys," he said, "I put it over. Now I can go home and help my son get the haying done."

For the present he preferred not to discuss recognition of Russia, but he said, "between you and me I am for recognition right away."

Prohibition he passed over, but expressed himself as favoring a soldiers' bonus payable out of excess profits. He declared himself against the World Court and the League of Nations.

Washington, July 17.—The election of Magnus Johnson as Senator from Minnesota leaves the Republicans with a nominal majority of five in the Senate.

As the roster now stands there are 50 Republicans, 43 Democrats and 2 Farmer-Labors. There is a vacancy for Vermont due to the death of Senator Dillingham and the general expectation here is that a Republican will be appointed to the place by Vermont's governor.

STOCK REPORT

Irregular Prices and Downward Movements Are Feature.

(By Associated Press)

New York, July 17.—Prices were irregular at the opening of today's stock market with the majority of shares moving lower, particularly the rail shares. In no instance was the change greater than half a point. Oil stocks were slightly improved. The readiness with which many influential stocks declined showed support was lacking. As was the case yesterday the bulk of the selling was done during the first half hour and prices stiffened toward noon. Call money opened at 4¾ per cent.

PLAN BIGGER FAIR

Abbottstown Buildings Improved at Cost of $2,000 For This Year.

Permanent improvements costing approximately $2,000 have been completed by the Abbottstown Farmers' Association at the grounds where the annual picnics are held, and everything is in readiness for the picnic which will be held there this year August 21, 22, 23 and 24. Two of the buildings will be used for the display of poultry and automobiles, and the third will be a music hall.

The poultry show this year will be one of the features of the picnic, it is stated. The directors of the Association, seeing the need of increased space, have provided a building for the show which is twice the size of that housing the poultry last year.

The committee in charge, composed of Charles Albert and F. S. Hafer, have bent their efforts during the past year to make the Abbottstown picnic one of the important ones of the county, and it is anticipated that with two more years of growth, it will take its place among the largest of the county fairs of the State.

AILING VETERANS ASK FOR REFORM

Legislative Program Prepared For Next Session of Congress.

Washington, July 17.—A legislative program, calling for adjusted compensation for world war veterans and affecting their rehabilitation, hospital care and insurance, will be pressed on congress when it convenes in December, by the Disabled American Veterans of the World War.

The program, based on recommendations adopted by the third annual convention of the organization recently in Minneapolis, was announced here Monday.

The proposals provide a rating of total permanent disability for veterans who have had hospital care for twelve consecutive months, and that all veterans so rated and those being treated at home shall receive the same family allowance as given to veterans' bureau trainees.

An effort will be made also to have all veterans recommended for permanent total disability rating carried on this roll temporarily, pending final award. Total disability rating will be sought for men entitled to training that has been declared not feasible, and a rating of 50 per cent permanent disability will be asked for men discharged from hospitals with diagnoses of arrested or quiescent tuberculosis.

Amendment of the civil service laws will be proposed to place disabled veterans who attain a passing grade in an examination at the head of the eligible list.

The program would make women veterans who are ill or in need eligible to enter any home maintained by the government for veterans, with provision for a separate home for them when their number warrants. The benefits of the veterans' bureau act also are sought for the bureau's nurses having bedside contact with patients.

Hospital treatment for all veterans, regardless of the origin of their disability, is urged, with extension of the three-year period of presumption for tubercular and neuro-psychiatric disabilities.

Removal of the time limit on application for compensation and permission for any applicant to appear before the rating board in person at government expense are asked, and the same privilege of reinstating war risk insurance is sought for veterans disabled in the service as enjoyed by those not disabled. Retirement of disabled emergency officers on the same basis as regular army officers also is advocated.

Among other proposals is one for establishment of a committee on veterans' affairs in the house of representatives and another for codification of all veterans' laws.

CASE WILL PUZZLE SECOND SOLOMON

Two Women Claim Baby Girl; Each Names Different Father.

(By Associated Press)

Los Angeles, July 17.—Arguments are expected to begin in superior court today in the proceedings brought by Mrs. Loys Pollan, of Savannah, Ga., wife of Captain Clinton Pollan, of the U. S. A., against her sister, Mrs. Elsie Shosted, for the custody of a five-year-old girl named June.

Mrs. Pollan told the court the child was born to her before she was married and that its father was Frank Nelson, an American soldier who she said was killed in France during the World War. She said she took the name of her sister, then Mrs. Gerald Schanholtzer, when the child was born and a report was given out that the latter was the child's mother. She declares she wanted to take charge of the baby then, but her sister and the latter's husband dissuaded her. Her sister, she says, has consistently refused to give up the child ever since.

Mrs. Shosted testified it was her husband, Schanholtzer, and not Nelson who was the father of her sister's child and that the mother had so confessed to her. Two other sisters contradicted the mothers declaration that Nelson died in France and said Mrs. Pollan had seen him in Springfield, Missouri, since the World War.

NEW OXFORD MAN HURT

Edward Strausbaugh, 60 years old, of New Oxford, was knocked down by a bicycle Monday evening as he was returning from work at the Alwine brickyard at Berlin Junction, and sustained a possible fracture of the hip. The bicycle was ridden by an fellow-employe, George Lawrence, of New Oxford.

Mr. Strausbaugh was taken to the West Side Hospital, at York, where an X-ray was taken this morning to determine the extent of his injuries. The results have not yet been learned. Mr. Strausbaugh underwent an operation at the Warner Hospital about two months ago.

HARDING TIRED; GOES NO FARTHER

Cancels Auto Journey Into More Remote Sections Of Alaska.

IS RETURNING TO SEWARD

Drives Last Spike On Government Railroad; Praises Spirit of Pioneers Finding Way Through Wilderness.

Fairbanks, Alaska, July 17.—Somewhat fatigued by their 400-mile trip into the interior of Alaska and fearful of low water for their steamship in the Tenana river, President and Mrs. Harding shortly before noon Monday called off their contemplated ninety-mile auto trip over the Richardson trail to the Tenana, and, instead, returned directly to Seward from here.

The presidential party arrived here Sunday night in point of time only, for although it was after 9 o'clock, the sun still was shining and it never got dark, as the days here now are twenty-four hours long.

The president while here visited the Agriculture College and School of Mines, the farthest north college in the world, which graduated its first student last June. Before he arrived at Fairbanks, the president drove the golden spike signifying completion of the government railroad from Seward through to Fairbanks in June.

The Gridiron Club, the national capital's famous organization of correspondents, held the farthest north meeting in its history Sunday midnight here in the land of the midnight sun, 150 miles from the arctic circle. Eight members of the organization from the American correspondents accompanying President Harding on his Alaskan trip gathered at the Tenana Club with Scott C. Bone, former Washington correspondent and now governor of Alaska.

Before driving the golden spike, President Harding paid tribute to those who had "pioneered" in the work of railroad construction in the far north.

"Before preforming the last act symbolizing the completion of this railway," said the president, "I wish to address my word of tribute to those who 'pioneered' it and contributed of their genius and courage to making of this steel highway through an almost impassable land.

"We have been traveling now somewhere between 400 and 500 miles over marvelous highways, and one thought has occurred to me everywhere, namely, that the outstanding genius of it all is the man who found the way, who had the conception, the preception and the confidence to find an open pathway through the moutains, the wildness and the canyons, and to surmount the various other physical difficulties which necessarily had to be encountered.

"I do not suppose any individual or set of individuals would have undertaken the construction of such a railway. It had to be left to the government itself."

DOLLINGS FIRM DELAYS CHECKS

porations, the R. L. Dollings Company of Indiana and the Pennsylvania company, and the International Note and Mortgage Company.

The investors were also notified in the letter that the company's "resale service" will not be available to them until after the receivership hearing. It was on this resale plan of the company that the thirteen stockholders in Ohio made the kick which resulted in the request for a receivership.

As explained Monday by Monte Leaky, vice president and head of the concern in Philadelphia, the resale plan provides that the company may repurchase from the stockholder securities sold him. Mr. Leaky explained that this could not be done in all instances, but that overzealous stock salesmen in their eagerness to effect sales sometimes made representations to "customers" contrary to the policies of the company.

Emphasis was laid in the letter sent out Monday that there had been no claim made that the Dollings companies owe money they cannot pay and that the action is one of stockholders and not of creditors.

William G. Benham, president of the various Dollings enterprises, has been in Philadelphia a week past, but returned to Columbus today. He supervised the preparation of the letter sent out Monday to the Pennsylvania company's customers.

"We believe that if permitted to carry out the companies' polices and program," read the letter, "we can say to you that the affairs of our companies, as well as the corporations whose securities we have sold, can and will be conducted in a manner that will prevent any loss to our customers. We advise our customers not to become unduly alarmed and assure them that we will, as in the past, use every effort to protect their interests."

FRENCH SPEECH WAS NOT A REPLY

Poincare's Address Prepared Before Baldwin Gave His Talk, Is Said.

Paris, July 17.—Premier Poincare's address at Senlis Sunday was a mere reiteration of the French government's policy and was not intended as a reply to the recent reparation speech of Prime Minister Baldwin, of Great Britain, it was explained in officials circles here Monday. The entire address, with the exception of a few paragraphs, was written before the British premier spoke, it was stated.

It is considered in official circles, it was added, that the situation between Great Britain and France up to the time the promised British note is received will be exactly the same as that obtaining since last January.

Draft of English Note To Be Sent To America

London, July 17.—Prime Minister Baldwin announced in the house of commons Monday that he would communicate to the United States for its information the draft of the reply he was preparing to the German reparations note. Mr. Baldwin's statement was made to J. Ramsay MacDonald, the leader of the labor opposition, in reply to the latter's question.

In reply to Commander Joseph Kenworthy, another questioner, the prime minister said the recent German note on reparations was addressed to the United States as well as to the British and allied governments; but that no recent conversations had occurred between representatives of the British and United States governments in regard to reparations or the present European situation.

KEPNER IN HARRISBURG

Had Automobile Accident After Passing Through Gettysburg Saturday.

B. Evard Kepner, whose wife was found shot to death in their home in Frederick last month, and who was questioned regarding her death at a coroner's inquest last week, suffered an automobile accident after passing through Gettysburg last Saturday, it was learned Monday afternoon

Mr. Kepner is now in Harrisburg, where he says he visits with relatives every Saturday. His aunt, Mrs. K. A. Reynolds, lives at 1715 Green street, that city, and he was interviewed there.

"They are the only relatives I now have in the world, and I came here Saturday as I have done every other Saturday for some time, on a visit to them. I would have left before tonight," said Mr Kepner Monday evening, "but I am delayed by an automobile accident while on my way here"

Kepner said his car crashed into a stone wall while he was driving to Harrisburg, and was badly damaged. He refused to go into detail regarding the accident. "I and my attorney are going to assist in solving the death of my wife, and we are not going to leave a stone unturned until we find the guilty person," he said. Little was heard of the death of Mrs. Kepner until her sister and brother started an investigation which resulted in the body being exhumed and an inquest held.

SEEK 4 CONVICTS AT SEA IN BOAT

Ships Warned By Radio To Look Out For Escaped Prisoners.

NAVY JOINS MAN-HUNT

Four of Hunted Men Put Out in Yawl From Pocomoke City, is Latest Report to Searching Parties.

Philadelphia, July 17.—Four of the six convicts who escaped from the Eastern Penitentiary Saturday morning by scaling the wall are believed to have put to sea in a yawl they stole in Pocomoke City, Md., Sunday morning.

Although reports of arrests were received by Captain of Detectives Souder from many towns in Pennsylvania, Maryland, New Jersey and Delaware, the report from Pocomoke City is the one upon which the authorities place most credence.

Pocomoke City is about 100 miles from Elkton, Md., near where the convicts bound and gagged Thomas J. Allister, whom they kidnaped when they stole his machine at Twenty-ninth and Poplar streets Saturday morning. McAllister told police that the convicts planned to separate. It is believed that four of the men stole an automobile and proceeded to Pocomoke City, stole the yawl and went to sea. The two other convicts either separated or are headed south.

Radio was utilized Monday night in trying to apprehend the convicts. Station WOO carried the message of the police department asking for the assistance of citizens in apprehending the bandits, for each of whom a reward of $250 has been offered.

Later Detective Gomborrow, upon orders from Captain of Detectives Souder, communicated with naval authorities and descriptions of the men and of the yawl in which they put out to sea was sent from Philadelphia navy yard to Newport News and carried to vessels in Chesapeake bay.

The investigation of Colonel John C. Groome, warden of the Eastern penitentiary, into the escape will be concluded today. Colonel Groome will immediately file his report with Governor Pinchot, who is manifesting great interest in the escape.

The colonel would not indicate Monday just what his findings have been. He said that he is exercising great care in his inquiry in order that no injustice be done to anyone.

"I have just received ford from Colonel Groome that his report will be sent to me tonight," the governor said in Harrisburg Monday. "My action will depend on the warden's report."

Posters containing the photographs, Bertillon measurements and fingerprints of the convicts as well as the offer of the reward were sent from the penitentiary Monday to police officials throughout the nation.

While Captain of Detectives Souder is using every available member of his bureau to trace the fugitives, state police are trailing the convicts over the Maryland line.

Substations at Malvern and Oxford, Chester county, and at Doylestown, Bucks county, are in close touch with the developments.

Detectives believe that Louis A. Edwards, "king of automobile thieves," and one of the most brutal criminals in this section of the country, planned the get-away. Investigation revealed that two days before the escape a man answering the description of a man who visited Edwards in the Berks county jail in Reading called on him at the penitentiary.

450 HIGHWAY MEN GO WITHOUT PAY

do the job he gratuitously takes over. This is the construction to be placed on the last clause of his letter. It is very unfortunate, because, if persisted in, the state treasurer's action will cause hardship among state employes who need their pay when payday comes, not when the state treasurer gets ready to pay them."

Is Creating Trouble

"Snyder is assuming a burden which means he must employ additional clerical help. This seems a very strange action in view of the implication in the last clause of his letter that the appropriation of his department is inadequate. The only conclusion that can be is that Snyder is willing to subject the highway department's labor forces to unwarranted delays. At the peak of its maintenance work the department is confronted with a change in the source of payment for its force of 10,600 employes. The new source, Snyder frankly implies, will be delayed in issuing the much-needed biweekly checks for labor."

Wright said that in June more than 31,000 checks were mailed by the highway department under the system of advance requisitions, by which he declared laborers' pay was sent out within a day and a half after receipt of the payrolls.

Samuel Hart, engineer in charge of the local district office, which includes Adams, Franklin and York counties, refuses to comment on the "no pay checks" situation here, saying all information on that subject must come from Secretary Wright.

venience in using and effectiveness in treating rather small quantities of stored material it has no equal. It has also been used to advantage against species of insects which live underground on the roots of plants or that nest in the ground as do some aphids, moles, crickets and ants. One use to which it has been put is to treat horses for bots by giving the straight liquid put up in capsule form to the animals in doses of one-quarter of an ounce. The greatly increased use of this material, particularly in the fumigation of stored food products, is a good indication of its general effectiveness.

Liquid carbon bisulphide is about one-fourth heavier than water. It evaporates very readily upon exposure to the air, the rate of evaporation depending largely upon the area of the exposed surface, the temperature of the air, and the height of the wall of the container above the liquid. The evaporation takes up heat in proportion to its rapidity so that it may produce frost on a hot day near the evaporation surface. No injurious effects result from getting it on the hands although it takes out the moisture and the oil leaving the skin dry and whitish. Pure carbon bisulphide is colorless, but the commercial form has a yellowish color due to the excess of sulphur and an unpleasant odor due to hydron sulphide contained.

The vapor carbon bisulphide is more than two and one-half times heavier than air and this particular point is of the greatest importance in considering the method of using this substance as a fumigant. First of all it need only be exposed above the material to be treated and its fumes will immediately begin to percolate down through the entire mass. And that isn't all. Unless the stuff being fumigated is in practically a gas tight room or container, with special reference to the lower walls and floor being gas tight, the fumes will continue to go down until they have escaped altogether. The force of the gas will then be lost and little or no results secured.

In treating grain for the Angoumois grain-moth the following procedure is recommended:

1. Make the granary as air tight as possible. Plug all openings about doors and windows with wet newspapers. Tack heavy paper, tar, building, or heavy wrapping paper over all cracks and other openings to the outside. Unless the bins are especially well constructed with matched flooring, line them about the lower walls and floor with heavy paper before the grain is put in. Do as neat and careful a job as of you were going to fill the place with water. In constructing a new granary, one in which the best results in fumigating are desired, it is best to put one layer of boards, of uniform thickness, on first, then cover with the heavy building paper which is folded or bent to fit into the corners about floor and laid so as to over lap at the edges three or four inches and cut to extend up the walls without piecing. A final layer of boarding running in opposite direction to the first is applied to protect the paper from being broken. Windows should be small, fit tight, and arranged for convenient opening from the outside.

2. For each 100 bushels of grain use 3 pounds (or pints) of carbon bisulphide. Put this in shallow pans on top of the grain. Pie tins or shallow milk pans can be used for the purpose and will not be in the least injured. If just the grain in the bins is to be fumigated, sink the pans down in the grain a little way and then cover the grain with sacks or blankets. By putting the pans down a bit the sacks or blankets will not interfere with the evaporation of the liquid.

3. If a clean up of the whole granary is necessary at this time, figure up the cubic feet of air space contained, not excluding the space occupied by grain, and for each 1000 cubic feet measure out 5 pounds of carbon bisulphide. Pour this amount upon sacks or other absorbent material and suspend these at different places from the ceiling. This is done in addition to putting the pans of the liquid on the bins of grain. In this case it will not be necessary to cover up the grain in the bins.

4. Work fast but carefully and upon leaving the granary close the door and plug any openings around it with wet newspapers. Allow the fumigation to run at least 24 hours. Then open up doors and windows and within a short time the gas will be dispersed.

5. Fumigate the grain in the bins again in about two weeks. Carbon bisulphide kills, according to investigators at the Michigan Experiment Station, by acting upon the fatty tissues in the insect body, dissolving them to some extent. It prevents the assimilation of oxygen and the carrying of other processes which are vital to the life of the insect. A certain amount of respiration goes on at all times so long as the insect is alive, but it is evident that respiration will be far less in the egg stage or during the dormant periods in an insect's life than in the active larval adult stages. The carbon bisulphide in a tight container has great power of penetration in getting to the young larvae within the kernels and in the great majority of instances one treatment gets a complete kill. Occasionally this is not so, perhaps on account of too many eggs being in an early stage of development, and a second treatment later is required.

How about the danger of using carbon bisulphide? Yes, there is a danger not only to the buildings on account of fire but to the operator handling the material as well. A person remaining in the presence of the gas for too long a time will suffer from, first, giddiness, then a very real kind of a sick stomach, and if he doesn't get out, death will finally result. Long before things will have reached such a pass, however, the dizziness will have caused him to make his way to the open air, and, although a little headache might result, no other ill effects may be feared.

In fumigating farm granaries the personal danger is almost negligible, but the fire hazard must be considered. The danger with carbon bisulphide is practically the same as that with gasoline, which is in common use in many thousands of homes. In reality, the danger is less, for gasoline is used in connection with fire while every effort is used to keep all manner of fire away from the fumes of the carbon bisulphide. Its vapor ignites at a lower temperature, however, than does that of gasoline. Consequently there must be no smoking or carrying around of lights where carbon bisulphide vapor is strong or turning on or off electric lights. The liquid should be stored in a cool, dry outhouse away from fire and where the containers will not rust out and allow the liquid to escape or evaporate. All containers should be plainly labeled.

There may be variations to the methods given here and good results secured but variations from the essential points or principles involved will lead to failure. So may we repeat that materials will be wasted and the grain moths but slightly inconvenienced unless the bins and granaries are absolutely tight, and generous amounts of the fumigant are used. In colder sections of the country, temperature must be considered, for below 70 degrees Fahrenheit the gas does not give the results it does at that temperature and above. Farmers should not wait until the grain in their bins begins to heat. At the present price of carbon bisulphide, two fumigations can be made at a cost of about one cent per bushel.

Fumigate at once; it is worth while.

WELL, WELL, THEY'VE FINALLY REACHED AN AGREEMENT

John Solomon, Incognito

by H. Bedford-Jones

"It is most unfortunate," said Macarty, to Fortier, "that I have never liked this overseer. I believe he is thoroughly honest, an extremely fine character in many ways! But at times he drinks to excess, and his ability falters. I would suggest, Mr. Fortier, that you look into his management."

"I intend to do so at once," said Fortier, nodding assent. "Your advice seems admirable, sir, and I thank you warmly for offering it. It seems to me that there may be some method of removing the management from Philbrick, without affronting his integrity."

"Quite so, quite so!" agreed Macarty, cordially. "One hesitates to wound an old servant, who may be inefficient yet is very faithful. Philbrick, when under the influence of liquor, is liable to the most extraordinary acts! Only a few days ago, I understand, he shot a negro—killed the poor fellow!"

Fortier looked up with a swift frown.

"Really? That sort of thing is bad, sir! Very bad! It cannot be endured for a moment. Is Philbrick under arrest, then?"

Macarty compressed his lips for an instant, as though impelled to say something which he was determined not to utter. Then he waved his hand, glanced around, and leaned forward. He spoke softly.

"For the sake of my niece, Mr. Fortier, you will understand that we must avoid all notoriety, if possible. Therefore, I undertook to keep the matter quiet. I have a little influence in the parish, and I believe that Philbrick will never be molested by the law. Of course, such actions cannot go on forever."

"I understand," assented Fortier. "Under the circumstances, Mr. Macarty, your kindness speaks volumes for your good heart! Perhaps we can get rid of the man without trouble."

Aline Lavergne heard this conversation with a very slight flush in her cheeks, but her gray eyes flashed. Fortier hastened to give her a hint.

"You will pardon these remarks, Miss Lavergne? I know your attachment to Philbrick, and I would not cause you any unhappiness. I think your uncle will bear me out, however, in the statement that sentiment is a very bad thing in business."

"Exactly, my boy, exactly!" affirmed Macarty at once. "You have the right idea, sir. Handle things like a gentleman, but with a firm rein."

"We shall see," murmured the girl.

The luncheon was nearly over when Macarty suddenly turned to his niece.

"By the way, Aline! You may recall that I had occasion to engage a new steward for the yacht? An odd little man of English birth, although an American citizen?"

The girl looked up. "Yes. You spoke of him."

"He has proved to be an absolute treasure!" said Macarty with enthusiasm. "Upon my word, the man is a genius! It appears that he knows his business thoroughly, and he made a report this morning that astonished me. That scoundrel who disappeared had been grafting regularly—must have stolen a good sum of money from first to last! This man Solomon handed me a check for a hundred dollars, the so-called 'commission' for cabin stores. He actually turned it over to me, as rightfully belonging to me!"

"I suppose you made him a present of it?" asked the girl, a twinkle in her eyes.

"By no means!" stated her uncle. "I made him a present of five dollars. His gratitude was quite touching, I assure you. By the way, Mr. Fortier, when do you go to the island? Aline says that you intend to look over the ground in person."

"I hope to run down next week," said Fortier.

"Then, sir, why not come with us? There is a spare cabin aboard, and we shall get away Monday noon. We would be delighted to have your company, eh, Aline? And it would save you a rather disagreeable trip by train."

"Certainly," said the girl. Her eyes met those of Fortier, and in them he read a sudden warning message that belied her words. It was a message almost of fright. "By all means, Mr. Fortier!"

"Thank you," returned the latter. "I shall be delighted to accept!"

A moment later, Macarty was summoned to the telephone. No sooner had he left, than Fortier took a yellow slip of paper from his pocket.

"I think it is best for me to accept this invitation," he said quietly. "Please let me be the judge! And read this message."

Aline Lavergne spread out the telegram. It read:

"J. Fortier, New Orleans: They have got me this time. Am leaving plantation in charge of Captain Wrexham. Do not interfere with him. No hurry. Love to Aline.

"J. PHILBRICK."

"Don't worry," said Fortier quickly. "A good deal must have happened down there—more than we can guess. Philbrick is no fool."

"I am not worrying," said Aline. Her gray eyes were serene once more. She was still smiling gravely at Fortier when David Macarty rejoined them.

CHAPTER VI

It was well past noon on Monday when the Watersprite started on her hundred-mile voyage to the Gulf coast. Fortier had heard nothing further from John Philbrick.

In his younger days an enthusiastic amateur yachtsman, David Macarty was nominally captain of this commodious little cruiser. In reality, his two mates did all the handling of the craft. There was a crew of six white men—one of them a quartermaster, Gros Michel by name. A fat, hulking ruffian, this.

On coming aboard with Macarty and Aline, Jack Fortier was introduced to the second officer, Thompson. The latter touched his cap, without [illegible] and Fortier chuckled to himself at the sullen features.

Yet, this slight incident worried him. David Macarty had undoubtedly sent Thompson to him. Macarty would now know that he must recognize Thompson, yet was unconcerned. Why so? What game was David Macarty playing so genially and affably?

Of his friend, the steward, Fortier saw nothing at all until the city was behind and Solomon served drinks under the after awning. The man's face was blank, expressionless as ever. He was a perfect servitor.

Early in the afternoon, David Macarty retired to his own tiny stateroom for a nap. Before departing, he presented Fortier to the first officer, his actual captain—a fine, brisk seaman named Wright. Fortier liked the man, guessed him to be thoroughly reliable. Wright shook hands and departed to the bridge.

"How do you like the boat?" inquired Aline, when she and Fortier were alone beneath the awning. Fortier met her gaze, and found it sweetly poised as ever, yet somewhat probing and questioning. He puffed at his cigar a moment, then removed it from his lips.

"She seems a fine craft," he responded slowly.

"And—her crew?"

Fortier looked into the gray eyes again. A smile curved his lips.

"You have an uncanny fashion of reaching to the heart of things, Miss Lavergne!" he answered. "Is it intuition?"

"I think so," she said quietly.

"H'm! I believe it is. Well, I'll be frank—I don't like the crew! That chap, Thompson, was in my office last week; he had a big fat bribe to induce me to go to San Francisco on a mythical legal errand. He was inspired to it, of course."

BUY-COAL-NOW ADVICE

Recalling their experiences of last winter, many residents of Gettysburg have already stocked their cellars to the limit of their needs for another blustery season with coal.

Now comes the federal fuel distributor, F. R. Wadleigh, and warns industry as a whole to buy its next winter's coal at this time. It is the same old story—mines closing down, workmen idle and freight cars empty and rusting in long lines on the sidetracks.

The same reason urged on industry to buy coal in the summer time for use in winter is given now as was given in years gone by: if they fail to purchase now they will probably enter the fall season with its renewed activities only to find that they have insufficient stocks, and unable to obtain the necessary supply when the rail transportation system will be overburdened.

In the opinion of the fuel distributor, the country's coal stocks are normal. There has been a tendency to accumulate stocks ahead but it seems that this has ceased—presumably in view of "uncertain business conditions."

It may be a question with many, industrial and domestic consumers alike, how much of a stock of coal to lay in during the summer for winter use, but the forehanded will at least have a good working balance ahead. Putting the purchases off too late means several things: possibly of not getting grade or the amount desired, costly delays and probably higher prices.

ENDURING THINGS

Some experts now declare that an old cypress in Louisiana is more than 2,500 years old. At the birth of Christ that tree had been standing six centuries. Rome was a town of huts when that tree sprouted from the seed and Ninevah, of which the Prophet Jonah tells, was just destroyed.

Yet it is far from being the oldest tree. The Santa Maria del Tule cypress in Mexico is estimated to be between 5,000 and 6,000 years of age, and some redwoods in California are placed at 4,000 years. The Mexican cypress antedates the birth of Abraham as the Louisiana tree does that of Christ, and the redwoods probably were taller than any tree in this country when King Tut was laid in his tomb.

DANGERS

Away for the summer,
Away from the heat,
Away from the noise
And the din of the street.
Away from the autos
Which dash up and down,
Away from the dangers
Which lurk in the town.

Out, to the country,
Where life is secure,
(If only the water
And milk shall be pure)
Where nothing can happen—
Unless it should be
One of the children
Shall fall from a tree.
Away from the autos,
To watch them all day
At the edge of the lake
Where they venture to play,
Where there is no danger
Whatever they do—
Unless they stand up
In the neighbor's canoe.

Now, children and danger
Are partners, I'll swear;
Wherever you take them,
Some hazard is there.
Away from the dangers
Which lurk in the town,
We fly to the fear
That our youngsters may drown.

Paragraphs From Nearby Counties

York

Obstructed Highway

Charged with obstructing the operations of state road contractors because of a controversy over a line between the road and his property in North Codorus township, about a half mile from Spring Grove, Jacob S. Nace, of that place, was placed under arrest by Detective Oscar Stoner. The charge was brought before Alderman Walter F. Owen, York, and Nace entered bail for a hearing Tuesday, July 17. Some time ago the state highway department officials and the supervisors of North Codorus township got together in a conference and established a road line along which they intended to improve the road. The line established in some manner interfered with Nace's property or his plans, for at any rate he decided that the work should not go on. Accordingly he prepared to build a concrete fence along the line and so block the road operations.

Oldest Minister Dies

Rev. Armstrong Herman Irvine, the oldest minister of the Central Pennsylvania Conference of the Evangelical Church, and a former pastor of Grace Church, Hanover, died Saturday night, at his home, 113 West King street, York. He was 84 years old. Death was due to general debility and followed a declining illness of several months. Rev. Irvine was ordained as an Evangelical minister in 1860 and preached almost continuously for a period of 58 years. During this entire period he did not once take a vacation or in any other way leave the pulpit save when forced on account of illness. While in the ministry, Rev. Irvine filled quite a few pastorates: Lewisburg, Milton, Williamsport, Carlisle, Baltimore, Trinity church of York, Hagerstown, Lemoyne and Hanover. He also was honored on two consecutive occasions to election as presiding elder of the Central Pennsylvania conference.

Student Fills Pulpit

There was a large attendance at the regular morning service in St. Matthew's Lutheran Church Sunday when Clair James, a student in the Theological department of Susquehanna University, Selinsgrove, filled the pulpit. Mr. James used as the theme of his sermon, "The high value set by Jesus Christ on every creature endowed with a human soul, although people today oftimes refuse to do this and thus have entirely the wrong attitude toward sinners." Mr. James is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Tilden James, Hanover, and is a member of St. Matthew's Lutheran Church. He will have charge of the divine services each Sunday for five weeks, during the vacation of the pastor, Rev. R. H. Bergstresser, who with his family are spending a month at their summer home on the Isle of Que, near Selinsgrove.

Franklin

Farmer Shoots Self

John W. Garry, a retired farmer of Warren township, Franklin county, shot himself with a .32 calibre revolver recently at his home between Sylvan and Millstone and died three hours later. He was aged 70 years and had been in ill health for some time. He is survived by two sisters, one of whom found him dead in his bedroom. Coroner Kinter decided that an inquest was not necessary.

Ball Players Row

Shall the directors of a ball club say who the manager of the team shall be, or shall the players be allowed to dictate in the selection of their big chief? This was the issue that was forced by an unfortunate situation in Chambersburg, and it looks as though it has been settled decisively, that the directors are the ones who are to do the directing. At a special meeting of the directors of the Chambersburg ball club, of the Blue Ridge League, a petition was signed by nine players, asking that Mike (Harry) Mowrey, erstwhile manager of the team, be reinstated as manager. But the petition did not end with a request. It submitted the ultimatum that unless Mowrey was reinstated they wanted their releases.

Frederick

Sees High Prices in Fall

Prices of milk and butter and many other commodities will soar next winter if the present drouth continues much longer, is the prediction made by Frederick County Agent, John McGill, Jr. Pastures throughout the county have been practically burned up, Mr. McGill stated. The rain which fell last week helped some, but conditions are still bad. Corn is badly curled by the dry weather and in most instances the spring sowing of clover has been entirely killed or injured. The drouth seems to be general in that part of the country and the farmers have found it impossible to secure seed for crops which might be substituted for clover hay. The University of Maryland Extension Service has recommended the planting of soy beans, cow beans, millet and soudan grass as substitutes for the hay, but it is almost impossible to secure the seed for any of these now.

Lost Boy is Sought

Glenn Smith, aged 14 years, adopted son of Mrs. Lulu Yinger, who is visiting at the home of Frank Bruchey on West South street, Frederick, disappeared from his home and no word has been received regarding his whereabouts. The youngster is described as being cross-eyed and having light hair. He is of medium height. At the time of his disappearance he wore a blue striped shirt, dark gray trousers and was barefooted. He was last seen in the vicinity of Carroll Park, West Patrick street, of Frederick. Sheriff Jones, of Frederick, was notified of the boy's disappearance, but no clues have as yet been discovered that will lead to his apprehension. Any persons knowing anything about the youngster's whereabouts are requested to notify the sheriff immediately.

Barbara Fritchie Returns

Barbara Fritchie was in Frederick last week. Not the Dame Barbara who departed this life many long years ago, but a real, flesh and blood Barbara. And Barbara Fritchie is her real, honest-to-goodness name. The Barbara who visited Frederick Friday is about 16 years old and is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Fritchie, of Baltimore. Her father is an official of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company. Barbara was named for Whittier's heroine of the town "green walled by the hills of Maryland." Mr. Fritchie, the present Barbara's father, is particularly fond of the poem "Barbara Fritchie" and insisted that his only daughter bear the same name. So the little girl was duly christened and behold! Barbara Fritchie lives again. While she was in Frederick, Miss Fritchie was the guest of Miss Eleanor Abbott, grandniece of the original Barbara.

Washington

Fruit Growers Will Tour

An automobile tour through part of the most interesting fruit growing section of Washington County, a trip to Waynesboro, Pennsylvania, and a final evening session at Pen Mar will feature the annual Summer Meeting of the Maryland State Horticultural Society, Thursday, July 26th, according to announcements being sent out by S. S. Shaw, Secretary of that organization. This year the tour, which is a popular annual event of the organization, will start at Ringgold and will cover the surrounding section of Washington County during the morning. The large orchards of S. N. Loose and Aaron Newcomer in the vicinity of Ringgold and Edgemont will be included in the trip. Lunch will be served at Ringgold and in the afternoon the party will set out for Waynesboro where they will be guests of the Waynesboro Chamber of Commerce and the Franklin County Fruit Growers' Association.

Man Leaps From Window

Clarence B. Sweet, of Bluefield, West Virginia, president of the National Lumber Company, was found dead recently at the bottom of an airshaft, of the Bellevue Stratford Hotel, in Philadelphia, where he had a room on the fifth floor. Sweet's skull was crushed, evidently from a fall from the window of his room, the police believe. Papers found among his effects in the room indicated, according to the police, that things had not been going well. The police learned that he had left his wife and two children at Hagerstown, Maryland, they going to visit relaitves in Louisville, Ky. The family had just visited Virgina Lucas, a relative in Charleston, West Virginia.

Wrong Man Was Sought

William Cox, for whom West Virginia and Hagerstown authorities searched Hagerstown last week, did not shoot and seriously wound J. B. Shrewberry, of the West Virginia State Police, according to information obtained by the authorities. Cox was at first believed to be the man who on Friday shot and wounded the officer when the latter attempted to stop an automobile laden with whisky near Martinsburg. It has since been learned that another man was driving the machine. Police have secured a good description of the other man and are searching for him.

A fellow employe of Strausbaugh, who was knocked down, had his right hip fractured. Doctor Sheets reduced the fracture, and later had him removed to West Side Sanitarium at York.

ADVERTISING HELPS IN PLANS OF RICKENBACKER

Flood of Inquiries and Congratulatory Messages Follow Full-Page Advertisements in Newspapers.

Detroit, July 17.—"One never can anticipate the full result from a big advertising campaign, and we have just had a forceful reminder of that fact," says Captain E. V. Rickenbacker, vice president and director of sales of the Rickenbacker Motor Company.

"When we projected our big announcement of the new four-wheel brake Rickenbacker model, which, by the way, went into 550 leading newspapers of the country and was, therefore, one of the biggest advertising campaigns put over in recent times, we naturally anticipated a flood of telegrams and correspondence.

One of the 550 leading daily newspapers in the country chosen by the Rickenbacker people for full-page advertisements was The Gettysburg Times at Gettysburg, Pa.

"The flood came all right, but to our surprise nearly half of them were from an unexpected source," continued Mr. Rickenbacker.

"Heads of police departments, judges, sheriffs, fire chiefs and private citizens, all interested in anything that would help to solve the traffic problem and reduce the appalling number of traffic accidents, seemed to see in the four-wheel brake the most logical answer to that problem.

"Congratulations came from these by wire and by mail in such volume that we are more than ever convinced that we have achieved something worth while to the public as well as consulting our own business interests by pioneering in this important improvement."

Talks On Prohibition

To The Editor:

Much has been said on prohibition, for and against, and much scripture has been quoted. We wish to say to the readers of The Gettysburg Times a few points against liquor, but we can find enough common sense arguments against its use without referring to the scriptures.

Common sense teaches all men that all liquors are very injurious to their constitutions. Any person who desires good health and long life and desires to enjoy the full vigor of his body should never use any alcoholic liquors There is no man living who needs liquor, even when fatigued. There is no tonic on earth, no stimulant, equal to a draught of good, cold water, butter milk or a glass of good Lager beer, which is now sold at all stores, minus alcohol. These drinks will produce all the beneficial influence of stimulating liquors, without any of the many ill effects. Alcoholic liquors cause drunkenness.

You ask me, "What is drunkenness?" This I can answer by taking the reader to the drunkard's ragged, barefoot and bareheaded little children who are suffering from hunger and cold, and from the unfeeling blows of a drunken father. These children's company, owing to the conduct of the parent, is avoided by all the other children of the neighborhood. They are compelled to bear the disgrace attached to the parent as though it were a mark set upon them. Could the spirits of millions and billions of drunkards be aroused from their graves and appear before the living so that they might tell what made them drunkards, they would answer in a way that would affright the whole earth and astonish the heavens. Their reply would pierce the inmost soul of every consumer of intoxicating, alcoholic liquors and make the individual stand aghast while terror and dismay would seize upon him and the large drops of wretchedness, agony and dispair would ooze from every pore and the shrieking reply would echo through heaven and earth—the drinking of the cursed stuff called alcoholic liquors.

Men who have been in the habit of using the the burning alcoholic liquors may all laugh at our assertions. But let them remember that there was a time when every drunkard, likewise, laughed to scorn the idea of his falling into the drunkard's grave. Make the nation bone dry. But says the lover of red hot alcoholic liquors, "We lose this great amount of revenue to run this over-taxed government." We believe it as honorable for the government to go into bankruptcy as to exist upon blood money. We would sooner pay a twenty-five-cent tax on a box of matches than to be at the bar drunk from morning to night, with a family of little ones in want. We remember when the government closed the bars of Gettysburg during the encampment there. Many of the old drunks of the country and town provided for their families and were getting along fine. But within a few weeks after the opening of the bars, the old bums were back at their places, and their homes were again neglected and their families in want. Some of the country liquor drinkers went to town, their horses standing all day long on the street with nothing to eat. In some cases the city put up the poor brutes and had them fed, and the drunks had to pay the bills. So a bone dry nation would be a benefit even to the brutes.

We remember of one drunk's paying thirty-five cents for a drink at the bar, and he laughed at the price. Before he left town he went to the bake shop. The baker handed him a large loaf of bread for ten cents. He came near demolishing the bake shop. Ten cents for a big loaf of bread for his little tots was too much for him, but thirty-five cents for a swallow of alcoholic liquor was all right. The one stupendous crime facing the nation is the legalized liquor traffic. We say legalized because it is bootlegged over the nation, in place of hotels and saloons. We deem it high time that our nation dissolve partnership with this family—wrecking soul and destroying business. We have nothing to say against good, old Lager beer, without alcohol, that the farmers and laboring men can get at any store. In failing health the doctor says get malt extract or some other remedy made from hops, malt and yeast.

GAME WON IN FIRST INNING BY FIRST

Pitcher Stevens Beaten in Disastrous Opening Session.

First Ward beat Pitcher Stevens, of the Third Ward, in the first inning of their game on the Playground diamond Monday evening. The score when First Ward ceased slugging in the first inning was 5 to 0. The leaders were then held scoreless until the fifth inning when another run was pushed across. While all this was going on, however, Third Ward was not asleep and three runs were bumped off their bats. The final figures were 6 to 3, but it was evident to everyone present that if Stevens had not been battered around the way he was in the first inning, a different score might have resulted.

First Ward's entire team faced Pitcher Stevens in the first round, the first four batters, L. Oyler, Roth, Woodward and C. Bream, having each hit a safe bingle. Two costly errors, one by first baseman Hunter and another by Stover, followed in quick succession and only added to Stevens' troubles. After H. Armor was out on Yingling's throw from third to first, Stevens set down Phiel and Weiser, the tailenders, by the strike-out method.

Three hits and two runs in their half of the second frame and two hits and one run in their half of the third inning were Third Ward's contributions to the box score. In the fourth inning, the Third Warders came mighty close to scoring when D. Oyler, the First Ward's hurler, filled the bases. Knox's three bagger in the second inning, scoring Musselman and Weikert, was the prettiest clout of the evening, the ball describing a high arch, landing in deep left field.

Both D. Oyler and Stevens allowed six hits.

The KITCHEN CABINET

(©, 1923, Western Newspaper Union.)

I have loved the feel of the grass under my feet, and the sound of running streams by my side. The hum of the wind in the tree tops has always been good music to me, and the face of the fields has often comforted me more than the faces of men.—John Burroughs.

SEASONABLE GOOD THINGS

A crisp green salad is always agreeable and when served with the following dressing is quite nourishing:

Thousand Island Dressing.—Put into a small fruit jar one-half cupful of olive oil, the juice of half a lemon and half an orange, a teaspoonful of onion juice, one-fourth teaspoonful each of cayenne pepper and salt, one teaspoonful of Worcestershire sauce, one-fourth teaspoonful of mustard, three sprigs of parsley, chopped fine. Put on the rubber and cover and shake vigorously. Green pepper chopped may be added, and some enjoy the acid slightly softened by the addition of a teaspoonful of powdered sugar.

Barbecue of Porterhouse.—Have a cut of porterhouse cut about three and one-half inches thick and containing a good piece of tenderloin. Trim into shape, removing most of the fat and skewering it into shape. Mix two tablespoonfuls of dry mustard with one teaspoonful each of salt and white pepper with a little cayenne, add to these four tablespoonfuls of creamed butter and rub the mixture well into the meat on both sides and edges. Place on a grate over a pan and set under the gas flame. Have two tablespoonfuls of olive oil mixed with one teaspoonful of Worcestershire sauce and brush the steak every five minutes with this mixture, reducing the heat after the surface of the steak is seared. Cook forty-five minutes. The brush should be dipped into the drip from the pan after the juice of the steak has begun to drip. Rub with more mustard with the moistened brush, just before it goes to the table.

Barbecued Mutton.—Make a sauce by melting two tablespoonfuls of butter; to this add the juice of half a good-sized lemon, one-quarter cupful of currant jelly, one-quarter teaspoonful of prepared mustard, one-half teaspoonful of salt, a few dashes of cayenne and one teaspoonful of grated orange peel. Reheat the thin slices of mutton in this sauce. Serve steaming hot; but do not cook.
